Americans Continue to Struggle with Health Care Costs: HealthWell Foundation Removes the Obstacles

A dozen years after the Affordable Care Act passed, the number of Americans covered by health insurance is higher than ever. Yet many still faced barriers paying for health care in 2022. One of the main obstacles: underinsurance and wallet-draining out-of-pocket costs for prescriptions and health insurance premiums.

People who have chronic and life-altering illnesses often face mounting medical bills they cannot pay, even when they have medical insurance. What happens then? They put off diagnostic tests, doctor's appointments and surgeries. They skip pills and other prescribed treatments. Or they exhaust all their savings and go into debt to pay for their health. None of these tough decisions is acceptable, nor are the poor health outcomes that can result.

Consider a cancer diagnosis. Nearly 2 million Americans are diagnosed with cancer each year. After the shock of the diagnosis comes the shock of how to pay for treatment, especially if the diagnosis forces the patient to leave the workforce as up to 85% of cancer patients do. And it's not just the cancer patient who suffers financially. Informal family caregivers – there are about 6 million of them caring for people with cancer – have out-of-pocket costs that can reach several thousand dollars a month, leaving them vulnerable to long-term financial strain as well as mental health distress.

Medical debt is more common than many think, and it can lead to a worsening of social determinants of health (SDOH) including housing and food insecurity, which in turn is associated with adverse mental and physical health outcomes. It can be a vicious cycle, especially among middle-class and low-income households, and can inhibit people from seeking further care. Medical debt is also deepening racial disparities.

High inflation in 2022 spurred additional financial hardships for many Americans. Some help came in the form of pandemic-era subsidies for marketplace health insurance plans. The 2022 Inflation Reduction Act (IRA) extended those plans for another three years and lowered certain prescription drug prices and out-of-pocket costs for Medicare beneficiaries.

HealthWell Foundation is following the implementation of the IRA closely, and we look forward to the additional relief it will provide to Americans who struggle to pay for their health care. We firmly believe that nobody should be left unserved by the health care system, regardless of their inability to pay for needed care. That's why we put patients first in everything we do.

Letter from our President and Board Chair

Throughout 2022, Americans continued to struggle with health care costs. Rising inflation put the squeeze on our wallets just as the pandemic re-emerged and mental health and racial health disparity crises surged. Accessing care remained difficult as nursing and clinical shortages lingered.

Along with challenges came some glimmers of hope in 2022. In August, the federal government passed the Inflation Reduction Act (IRA), which includes substantial reforms to Medicare's system of drug pricing reimbursement and provides seniors with new financial protections. We are watching the implementation of this new law closely, as well as additional drug pricing reforms designed to benefit patients.

No matter which way the winds of drug pricing and health care access blow, HealthWell remains firmly committed to putting patients first in everything we do. We are proud of the impact we made in 2022, providing a record dollar amount of grants to patients who had nowhere else to turn. That impact was possible thanks to the generous support of our individual and corporate donors. We are both honored and humbled by the trust you continue to place in us, our integrity, and our ability to continuously innovate to serve our patients' needs.

As the COVID pandemic began to recede into our collective rear-view mirror toward the end of the year, we remained thankful for the promise of brighter days ahead. We know that for people with chronic and life-altering illnesses, those brighter days require freedom from the financial toxicity associated with health care treatments. We extend the commitment of our board of directors, dedicated corporate and contact center teams, provider and pharmacy network, our patient advocacy partners, and our devoted employees to ensuring that the patients who count on us can continue to do so.

Warmest regards,

Krista Zodet
President

Warm wishes,

Words of Thanks and Gratitude

“Just a short note to let you know that I have just filled my first prescription and used the money you gave me in my grant. To go fill that prescription and not worry about the cost was such a relief. I was prescribed two pills in the morning and two at night, but I only took one in the a.m.

Karen

and one in the p.m. so that I could stretch out what pills I had. I was questioning whether to just not refill the prescription when I had taken all of the remaining pills.

I retired early and used much of my retirement money to pay for medical bills due to breast cancer.

I do have a retirement account and social security, but I still have a house payment which surely does take a lot of my monthly money. This grant has surely helped me, and I thank you for that.

I know I will not use all of what you have given me by the end of my grant time. I am hoping I can apply again and receive another grant for the next year. Thank you again.”

“I would very much like to thank your Foundation for that incredible grant that you provided. My doctor mentioned that in a recent lab update that my viral count was quite low, that the medication was working. Amazing and wonderful to be cured from a chronic condition.

Bob and friend Rachel

Rachel and her mother, Lorna, and her father, Cliff, are my first rate health advocates. Without them, I would truly be lost. More importantly though, they are the best friends that I could ever imagine. They all have been going above and beyond and are an inspiration to me.

Again, I thank you and your admirable Foundation.

Thank you once more HealthWell Foundation for your lifesaving work.”

“If you have had a chronic illness with symptoms and side effects so awful you feel ashamed and beyond help, then you know how I felt when I first came down with Tardive Dyskinesia. Tardive Dyskinesia, often referred to as “TD,” is characterized by uncontrollable muscle movements and, starting in 2008, the involuntary twitches and jerks took over many parts of my body. It was disfiguring and painful.

I went online and learned that antipsychotic medicines had been causing Tardive Dyskinesia since the 1950s, and I'd been taking those for my bipolar disorder for eight years. The shakes had gotten so bad at night I couldn't sleep in the same bed as my husband. I can't even sleep. I started losing my teeth from grinding them. I saw six neurologists and they said my symptoms were psychosomatic. The medical shunning about broke me. I cried constantly. Finally, someone diagnosed me properly and said, “Young lady, you're going to have to learn to “suck it up,” by which I took to mean life was only going to get worse.

A few years later the miracle I had hoped for arrived when the FDA approved the first ever treatment for Tardive Dyskinesia. It was a VERY big deal, and I had no trouble getting Medicare to prior authorize coverage for it, but my out-of-pocket costs would wipe me out. I mean, I'd lose my house. My pharmacist mentioned the HealthWell Foundation. By that time, I was emotionally tapped out. I'm neither rich nor poor, but somewhere in the middle. I didn't think I'd qualify for a grant or anything. The pharmacist said, “Let's just try. The application only has a few questions, and we can complete it over the phone.” A few moments later, I had my grant. We both feel so blessed I have great treatment for a very tough disease whose symptoms and side effects had made me feel ‘radioactive,’ like a medical leper.

Today life isn't perfect, but I'm grateful for what I've got, which is the best ‘now’ I've had in years. That's because someone lent me a helping hand. That someone is the HealthWell Foundation. There are so many people in need who don't think they're eligible for assistance. Together, we can let them know HealthWell is there for them.”

“Cardiomyopathy is a serious heart condition and a scary diagnosis to receive. For individuals who are living with cardiomyopathy and are on Medicare, accessing care and medications may be unattainable due to cost. WomenHeart is thrilled that the HealthWell Foundation recognizes the unmet need of this patient population and can provide valuable financial resources to assist those in need. This support can be especially critical for women, who tend to have lower incomes and often take longer to get the proper diagnosis.”

Celina Gorre
CEO of WomenHeart

We were also proud to provide a financial lifeline to the families of over 1,800 children living with chronic or life-altering conditions through our HealthWell Pediatric Assistance Fund® and to assist more than 150 oncology patients seeking behavioral health services through our Cancer-Related Behavioral Health Fund.

Financial Reports

"I wanted to reach out to express my heartfelt appreciation to the Foundation. I am honored to be a recipient of one of your grants which assists in payment of my medication. Finding out I have cancer, leukemia, was the most frightening thing that has happened to me. Aside from being very ill, the tests, appointments, meeting new doctors and trying to wrap my head around this whole thing has been a tremendous amount to deal with.

Pamela and her husband

When my doctor, Nichole Bartosh, decided on the medication she felt was the right choice for me, she also explained the extreme expense. Right away she added that her staff would work with us. While I was at an appointment to have blood drawn, I received a call from The Center TX saying that they had been notified that I qualified for a grant. It still brings me to tears as I try to explain what a blessing this is.

I am doing extremely well on my medication and am so thankful for the fabulous treatment I continue to receive.

Your foundation has been a blessing in this very distressing time. I am so grateful."
